- Without pagination: 54 leaves, the map immediately after c ii, being counted as two leaves. 27 lines to a page. The work is divided into two parts, with signatures A-D, A [a]-f. This edition is the second, printed at St. Dié in the same year, and is unknown to Brunet; the first, having the date of May 7, is described by him in his Manuel du Libraire, art. Cosmographia. The differences in the editions there pointed out, make it necessary to add the following particulars in regard to the present edition. On the verso of the first leaf the dedication to Maximilian commences thus: "Divo Maximiliano Cæsari semper Augusto Gymnasium Vosagense"—and the recto of fol. 2. (sig. A ij) begins "Quis inquā illorum omnium ritus ac mores," etc. The four navigations of Vespucci, here brought together for the first time, are stated on their titlepage to have been translated into Latin from a French version, which however does not appear to be in existence. In the "Cosmographia," Hylacomylus has been the first to name the new continent America:—"Americi terra, sive America."
